Forecast For Wales
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Sunday 23 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Widespread rain moving in from the west.

Today:
Largely cloudy to start with a chance of some showers, particularly in the south. Rain, locally heavy, will move in from the west by the afternoon, accompanied by gusty winds and spreading across all parts. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Tonight:
Rain soon clearing to the east with showers following behind. Further showers, heavy at times, moving in overnight and affecting many areas, especially the south. Breezy. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Monday:
Breezy with frequent showers on Monday, these bringing heavy some downpours, as well as a risk of thunder and hail. Turning drier in the evening with clear spells. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Sunny spells on Tuesday and Wednesday, although there is still a chance of a few showers. Breezy. Dry with lighter winds on Thursday and feeling pleasant in any sunshine.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.